

The MMS also conducts unannounced audits on 25 percent of all certified training programs each year. These audits emphasize program record maintenance, classroom layout and function, and classroom or hands-on instruction. Finally, MMS tests students at the training site on a random basis to verify that they understand the curriculum.

Duties of a Third Party

If adopted, third parties would continue much of what MMS does under the current program. They would also report periodically to MMS on their activities. These reports would include any significant certification or monitoring issues, ideas for improving training programs and techniques, and recommendations for enhancing worker safety and protecting the environment.

Some specifics may include—

- reporting to MMS on the certified training programs and the associated training organizations;
- evaluating and reporting to the MMS the relationships between training program requirements and incidents that occur at offshore facilities (e.g., analyses of offshore operators' "near-miss" and well "kick" data and well blowout prevention equipment); and
- recommending changes to the certification process or MMS training program requirements.

Qualifications of a Third Party

The MMS will consider several factors in choosing a third party.

Certification fee structure. MMS would not pay third parties to do certification work. Instead, third parties would charge training organizations a service fee. The MMS would determine whether a fee is reasonable and equitable.

Certifier's credentials. Third parties should have knowledge of and practical experience with oil and gas drilling, well-completion, well-workover, well-supervising, and/or production activities. They also should be experienced at assessing teaching credentials and curricula. Training programs may include traditional instructor/classroom training as well as other training techniques (e.g., team-based or computer-based).

Reliability and responsiveness. Third parties would have to dedicate sufficient staff and resources to handle anticipated workloads; demonstrate that they can process certification requests competently and promptly; and install a system to maintain complete, up-to-date, and accessible records.

Objectively. To avoid conflicts of interest, third parties could not consider certification requests from training organizations in which either the third party or the organization held a financial or business interest in the other. Third parties would honor certification requests from any other training organization. The MMS would expect third parties to develop a process for objectively reviewing training organization appeals.

Training program assessment capabilities. Third parties would have to demonstrate they can assess training program performance. While MMS would not insist that third parties use the current monitoring techniques, MMS would expect a comparable program to be in place. Also, third parties would have to emphasize "after-the-school" workforce performance appraisals. In particular, MMS is interested in methods that assess knowledge retention, and how the training is applied in the workplace. Third parties would provide MMS with feedback on worker training improvements.

MMS oversight. Third parties would assist MMS in its oversight role by helping investigate complaints about certification determinations and cooperating in MMS audits. The MMS also would expect third parties to grant MMS ex officio status on any of its governing boards or executive/management committees. Third parties would consult with the MMS on concerns over whether a proposed program meets MMS requirements. This might be important when third parties have to certify programs that involve new, unusual, or alternative techniques.
